

THE STRAWBERRY

The strawberry plant is small and formed from tufts, which are more or less dense according to the variety. The heart is a knotty rhizome whose multiple extensions are called stolons, filaments or runners. They produce rosettes of leaves, which take root themselves.

CRÈME DE FRAISE À LA FRAISE DES BOIS

18% VOL.

STRAWBERRY LIQUEUR WITH WILD
STRAWBERRIES

Limpid, brilliant reddish-orange in colour, this wild strawberry liqueur has a powerful nose of fresh fruit.

The palate is unctuously vibrant and as crisp as wild strawberries themselves.

A pleasure and a delight, which can be tasted alone sip by sip or as a cocktail with either Champagne or a Trénel Crémant de Bourgogne.
